THE ASSAULTS AT GETTYSBURG AND KENESAW MOUNTAIN.

A Veteran's Opinion of the Two Brilliant and Daring Battles—A Lieutenant's Report on Tired Mules With Ravens Appetites.

"Shortly after the battle of Chickamauga," said Captain Fitch, "I was appointed chief quartermaster of the signal corps of the department of the Cumberland, stationed at Chattanooga. On taking account of the quartermaster's stores I found that I was in need of some light wagons to be used in the mountainous country, and the only way to get them was to go to Nashville and have them made, so I went to Nashville and had five light wagons made by the quartermaster's department. When I got back to Chattanooga with the wagons, I put a citizen teamster in charge of the wagons and mules.

"The teamster, being a green hand, did not know that mules would eat anything within their reach and innocently tied them to the wheels of the wagons. Not long after that I got an order to be ready to march, and on going out to inspect my outfit I found that the mules had eaten the spokes of the wheels nearly off, so that the wagons were ready to fall down of their own accord. As I could not use them I had no recourse but to drop them from my returns, and, being obliged to assign a reason for so dropping them, I gave the true one—viz, 'Eaten by mules.'

"Shortly afterward I got a letter from the quartermaster general sarcastically inquiring if Lieutenant Fitch had observed whether the mules had eaten the tires or not. I replied that I presumed they had, as they seemed to be thoroughly tired the next day. The quartermaster general wrote back, 'Any further trilling with this department on the part of Lieutenant Fitch will probably result in his being retired to private life.' Thereupon I dropped the subject, but my first report was correct."

"At Chickamauga," said the major, "Longstreet's men ran over our headquarters teams. Every mule in one of the teams went down, and the wagon stood in obstruction in the road. Five minutes later every mule was on its feet, and a wounded teamster yelled at them to pull out. They started without more ado, swept along the road after our broken regiments and, turning at just the right place, came into our new lines and stopped where the headquarters flag had been stuck in the ground. The driver reported later and drove to Chattanooga."

"One of these mules the night before had pulled the blanket off our division commander, had run over the lines of soldiers sleeping in close battle order, and raided the Confederate pickets and had returned to our bivouac under a furious cry. The men of the brigade took a solemn vow to shoot the mischievous mule at daylight, but when daylight came they had other things to shoot at, and the mule was forgotten until he came in at the head of the team attached to the headquarters wagon. Then the boys who had witnessed the charge and the escape of the driverless team counted the mule's devilry as nothing."

"That charge of Longstreet, by the way," said the colonel, "was one of the great charges of the war, and it was as successful as any as a breaker of lines. Of course we think of Pickett's charge at Gettysburg in a class to itself, but I have often wondered whether the Union assault on the Confederate position at Kennesaw mountain June 27, 1864, should not be put in the list with the Confederate charge at Gettysburg. Pickett's charge was of course the more spectacular, and the assaulting force was more compact, but while it broke the Union line at one point it was driven back in disastrous retreat."

"The direct assault on the fortified line on Kennesaw was made by three brigades, no better troops than Pickett's Virginians, but it must be remembered that while they failed to pierce the Confederate line they held their position and did not retreat. Their loss was correspondingly as heavy as Pickett's at Gettysburg. Sherman's idea was to show his own army as well as the Confederate army that he could make a frontal attack. If the assault had been made and the assaulting column had retired, as did Pickett's column at Gettysburg, the effect on the army would not have been as it was when the regiments that led the assault clung to their position not more than 30 paces from the Confederate parapets."

"The attack failed except in that it was an illustration of the spirit of the Union troops in assault. Lee's purpose at Gettysburg was undoubtedly to drive Pickett's 10,000 men like a wedge through the Union lines. The failure of the attempt led to the retreat of the whole Confederate army. Sherman's purpose at Kennesaw was to capture the Confederate fortifications. The attack led to the retreat of Sherman's army, but of the Confederate army, and I have always held that the ground over which the Union regiments of that day swept forward ought to be as precious to the men of McCook's, Harker's and Mitchell's brigades as is the ground at Gettysburg to the men of Pickett's brigades."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Their Last Answer.
On one of Queen Victoria's earliest visits to London she observed to her friend, the Earl of Albemarle, "I wonder I, my good people of London are as glad to see me as I am to see them."
He pointed to the letters V. R. woven into the decorations and said, "Your majesty can see their loyal cockney answer, 'Ye are.'"

Lonely Homes

A home is never complete without children. Yet many homes are childless. Many wives are desolate for the lack of a child to love. Their lives are aimless—void of the high motives of motherhood. While barrenness is causing incalculable sadness and sorrow, it exists in most cases on account of some ill-female trouble, which Wine of Cardui would speedily set right. This pure Wine regulates the disordered female organs by building up the worn out nerves and restoring the menstrual flow. It restores the fallen womb to its proper place. By strengthening the generative system, it makes pregnancy possible where barrenness exists. You can depend on

WINE OF CARDUI

Suffering women all over the land have been depending on it for seventy-five years. No more convincing proof can be given than the testimony of Mrs. Benson, who is only one of thousands of women to whom Wine of Cardui has brought a permanent cure. Many cases of miscarriage—that trouble which robs mothers of their hopes—have been avoided by timely use of the Wine. You are asked to try Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught, its companion medicine. Nine out of ten cases of female trouble, barrenness included, yield to them. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

Last May I had a miscarriage, which was followed by flooding. I read your Almanac and my husband got me a bottle of Wine of Cardui and it stopped my flooding and restored my fallen womb to its place. Now I am cured after taking three bottles and have another to take which I got this morning. I am expecting to become a mother and Wine of Cardui will be my doctor.

POLITICS AND PARTIZANISM.

A party man, or even a strong party man, is not necessarily a partizan, any more than it follows that devout Christianity is evidence of religious fanaticism. Webster defines the word "partizan" as "one who exhibits an undue or unreasonable devotion to a party." A person may possess strong political convictions which he may express and carry out without justly entailing himself to the charge of partizanship. The motto, "Our party, right or wrong," is only observed by those whose zeal for party success is greater than their love of country or the maintenance of the principles upon which it was founded and the republican institutions upon which our government was based, the perpetration of which should be the paramount object of every American when exercising the privilege of franchise guaranteed him by the constitution and laws of the Republic of which he is a citizen and a sovereign. Politicians, or political writers and speakers, who fail to censure abuses in their own parties, or recognize the commendable acts of their opponents, exhibit a narrow-mindedness and dearth of fairness and even patriotism, which are certain to result prejudicially to the party or candidates whose cause and interests they essay to promote and uphold.

The American people appreciate and admire fairness in everything, from a presidential contest to a prizefight, and the most useful and influential advocates are those who, while making the most of their side of the question, treat their opponents with fairness, censuring only when censure is merited, and not with holding credit whenever it is deserved. No rightful cause was ever promoted by the endorsement of a wrong. The aphorism, "the end justifies the means," is obsolete, and if it were not, unjustifiable "means" in politics is certain, in the long run, to defeat even justifiable "ends." Partizanship is manifested to a great extent in both of the great national parties, but not by the best element of either. We fear, moreover, that it is a growing evil, but the Journal will do its level best to suppress it in its immediate jurisdiction in its own party, both upon general principles and for the perhaps not altogether unselfish reason that we believe the less partizanship in a party the better chance for the advancement of its principles and the promotion of its success.

Let no one, however, construe the above remarks into an apology for the gold standard professed Democrats who composed the Republican contingent in 1896 and 1900. A party man, either Republican or Democratic, may consistently and honestly vote for a candidate running upon a platform which contains some plank which does not suit his political palate. Indeed, it is his duty to do so, if as a whole the platform nearer meets his views than the other. But these men, headed, or at least encouraged by Cleveland, declared themselves greater than their party and while subscribing to the body of the faith belied because of their disagreement with one article of its creed. Their arrogance if possible was more of the nature than the grossest display of partizanship, for it was a declaration that a minority, and an insignificant one at that, should by right rule an overwhelming majority.

MONEY GALORE.

At the close of the fiscal year ended June 30 last the treasury surplus of revenue over annual expenditure amounted to $79,527,690. For the present fiscal year the treasury authorities estimate a surplus of ordinary revenues over expenditures of $80,000,000, and a cash balance of $185,000,000. The question now is, says the Philadelphia Record, "What is to be done with this embarrassment of riches? On July 1 a portion of the war taxes, roughly estimated at $15,000,000, will fall away. But in view of steadily increasing surplus of revenues this will afford no great relief."

The semi-pacific condition of the Philippines will necessitate fewer troops, there, and the reduction will leave more surplus. The withdrawal of troops from China will also cause another addition. Can anyone explain how this rising surplus is going to benefit in any way the people of the country? Can anyone, moreover, explain how such an amount of money locked up in the treasury vaults can fail to lessen the life blood of business and prove a pernicious accretion? If the surplus gathered from undue taxation would be restored to the arteries and veins of business, by redemption of bonds or deposits in banks, the floating capital would be increased without disturbance. The small sums of money withdrawn from trade would be returned to their source, and perhaps little harm would be done. At the same time the disappearance altogether of the surplus would remove the temptation to expend the money of the people in subsidy appropriations and other schemes of plunder.

The mistake was in the retention of the larger portion of the war taxes after the necessity for them had ceased. An opportunity will be offered the next congress to rectify this error by sweeping away all that remains of war taxation. At the same time, reasonable reduction can be made on protective duties on imports, which, while yielding little public revenue, are extremely oppressive to American consumers.

THE COST OF IT.

When the war in South Africa was commenced it was predicted by the English press that it would prove a small affair and that the whole business would be ended in a few weeks. With national finances adjusted upon a peace basis, the little matter of the conquest of the Boers was the last thing thought of as likely to cause concern. General Buller but voiced the British sentiment when he remarked on leaving England to take command of the South African forces that he "would eat his Christmas dinner" in Pretoria, the Boer capital.

Instead, however, of a few weeks, the war has lasted two years and is still going on. The army now numbers, nearly, if not quite, 240,000, and is as large as it ever has been at any time during the war. Its maintenance has not only eaten up the comfortable British surplus of receipts, but has created a deficit already of more than half a billion dollars. It has already cost John Bull $732,835,000, and a cool million is being added each day of the war's continuance. It has cost twice the amount of the Crimean war already, and it continued a year longer it will come up to the total indemnity that France had to pay Germany some thirty years ago, because of the folly of her Napoleon.

Of course, the financial matter is entirely of British concern, and is none of our American business, except as an object lesson from which Uncle Sam might possibly secure some useful pointers. To outsiders, however, this startling exhibit shows what a tremendous cost Great Britain is meeting to crush out the life of two well beloved republics, whose prosperity it coveted. Upon the British people the burden will fall, as a penalty for the greed of their authorities, acting in their name, and evidently without their approval. It certainly cannot be to them an encouraging state of affairs in which to start off the new century.

IN JUSTICE.

The Journal yesterday morning made reference to the Insular postoffice affair, and upon supposed facts as published in papers in the eastern part of the State, made some remarks concerning Inspector Coyne which we are now convinced were wholly undeserved. Mr. Coyne called at the Journal office yesterday and produced documents from Washington which were conclusive evidence that he acted in accordance with the accounts as furnished him by the department, in which it appears there was an important error, a balance of $2,636.08 being charged against Mr. Snyder on March 1, instead of $127.26, which was the correct amount. The inspector certainly should not be blamed for an error of the clerks in the postal department, and it is with pleasure we make this explanation, and especially because of the gentlemanly manner in which Mr. Coyne proceeded to convince us of our mistake and enable us to rectify it.

It appears, however, that instead of a balance of $60 being due Mr. Snyder, he is behind with the government $208.41, minus $49.35 which has been paid by his sureties. The ex postmaster is still in jail, but the probability is that the delinquency being so much reduced, the sureties will not insist upon pushing the matter to a criminal prosecution.

And now the iron and steel makers of Scotland have named a delegation to come to America to investigate conditions here and to learn why it is that American steel mills are driving them out of the open markets of the world.—Salt Lake Tribune

It won't take them long to find out that it is the steel trust tariff production, which enables monopoly to sell their manufactures in foreign countries at lower rates than are charged to home consumers. In other words, our home people are taxed the tariff rate in addition to the price at which like goods are sold at a profit across the ocean.

The newspapers are citing as a remarkable fact that the Republican party has never nominated a man from New York State for President. That's not surprising. No presidential nor vice-presidential candidate from Nevada has ever been nominated by either party.

SAGEBRUSH OCCURRENCES

Happenings in this State Cleaned From our Nevada Exchanges.

At a meeting of the Hawthorne school trustees held Saturday Miss Emma Marx was engaged as Principal of the Hawthorne school for the ensuing year and Miss Louise Cooke of Dayton as teacher of the primary classes.

An investigation into the tragic occurrence at the McQuarrie residence held in the Justice Court yesterday brought out no testimony differing from the account published in the Chronicle the day previous. There is now a strong probability that both mother and daughter will recover.

A shepherd received a painful injury near the Dangberg ranch in Douglas county the other day. He was carrying a rifle over his shoulder and fell over a rock. The rifle was discharged the ball striking him in the shoulder and lodging in the bone about an inch and a half in diameter. The injured man was taken to Carson for surgical attention.

The engagement is just announced of Richard Y. Fitzgerald of New York City and Miss Susan G. Walker of Washington, D. C. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Admiral John G. Walker, United States navy, and is one of the most popular and accomplished young ladies in Washington society. Mr. Fitzgerald is the youngest son of Judge A. L. Fitzgerald, one of the members of the Supreme Court of Nevada.

While the people of the east have been killed by the heat by the score and thousands have been prostrated, Carson, Nevada, held her carnival, and not a case of heat prostration was reported, and all the entertainments were held in the open. There is climate and climate, but this State declines to touch her breast to any State in the Union when it comes to climate.—Carson Appeal.

An Abandoned Test.

Sir Elham S. Maxim was once a victim of one of the British war office's sudden freaks. When the Maxim quick firing gun was being tested by the government with a view to finding out its weak points, its inventor was asked to load 10,000 rounds fired at the highest possible speed. The experiment was successfully carried out, but the chairman of the committee of investigation was still unsatisfied.

"That's very well as far as it goes," he exclaimed, "but could you guarantee your gun to go on firing automatically at the same rate for, say, 24 hours?"

"I can," was the quiet reply, "and I will—on one condition."

"And that is?"

"That the government finds and pays for the ammunition."

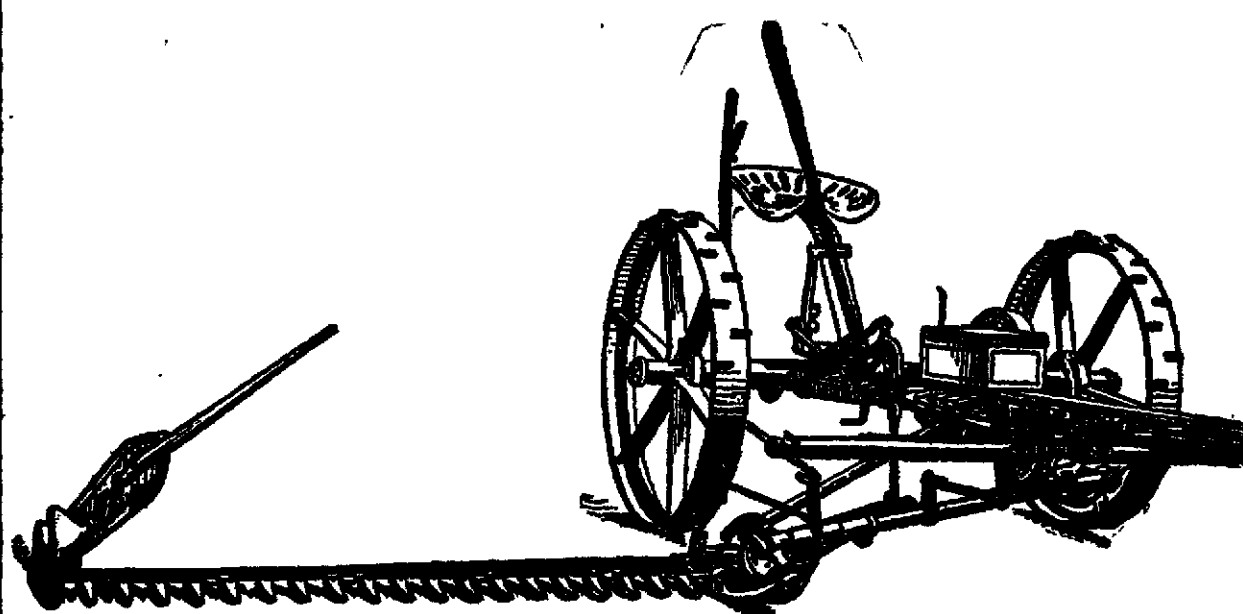

At first the committee were inclined to close with the offer, but when it was discovered that $14,000 rounds would be fired and that the cost of the experiment would be something like $5,760 they dispensed with the trial.

Utilizing the Waste Product. A parish in the highlands had been cut off from communication with the nearest town owing to a severe snowstorm, relates The Scottish American. Supplies began to give out, and the minister was much perturbed in mind as his snuffbox was quite empty. The Sabbath came round. How was he to get through his discourse without the aid of his usual stimulant? He appealed to his faithful beakman, the sexton Alex, he was in a similar unsatisfactory predicament! How was it to be remedied? Andrew shook his head, thought long and suddenly disappeared. Presently he returned with something resembling snuff wrapped carefully in paper. The minister took a hearty pinch or two and then asked:

"Where did you get it, Andrew?"

"Please, sir, I just went and swept the pulpit out," was the reply.

Hope to End the Strike.

PITTSBURG, July 11—The conference between the strikers and steel trust men failed to find a solution of the difficulty, but both sides are friendly and will renew the discussion to-morrow.

It is hoped to end the strike, if nothing unforeseen comes up to break off negotiations.

Crops in a Bad Way.

CHICAGO, July 11—Reports from the great grain growing

States show the heat is proving disastrous and the farmers will lose millions of dollars. Crops in the northwestern States will be badly damaged and perhaps entirely ruined if rain does not come soon.

Life Aboard an Arctic Boat.

The days and weeks pass without our taking any account of them. We get up at 6:30 in the morning. At 7 we feed the dogs. At 8 we have breakfast, and at 12 we dine. Then we work till 6:30, when we have supper, after which we smoke and play cards or chess till bedtime. It is not at all cold. Rarely does the thermometer descend below zero. Yesterday the sun shone gloriously. The ice reflected it with a blinding glare and to brilliant colors.

The ship has withstood all the assaults of the ice. It is splendid to see how it breaks up ice that is sometimes three or four feet thick. At other times, when it is even thicker, the ship is rushed against it at full steam. The shock splits and breaks it very often for a distance of 40 or 50 yards. The Duke of Abruzzi is always on the bridge and loses no opportunity of getting aboard. Sometimes he does not even come down to his meals. When ever we get the smallest opening, he orders us to go on, and we are glad of it, because the more we advance at the present time the less we shall have to do next year.—Laskie's Monthly.

Traps in French.

A frequent trap in French for the unwary is the difference of meaning in similar phrases. For example, "faire feu" means to fire a gun, while "faire du feu" means to light a fire; "tomber par terre" conveys the idea of falling to the ground from one's own height, whereas "tomber a terre" means to fall from any height—in other words, to tumble down and to tumble off. In the same way "trailer de fat" means to call a man a top and "trailer en roi" to treat him like a king. The English word "bore" may be expressed in two ways—"un raseur" gives the idea of an active bore and "une bassin" of a passive bore.—Academy.

Most Unwholesome.

"I think I'll have some of those crabs," said Jones at the lunch counter. "Don't you want some?"

"No," replied Smith. "They don't agree with me."

"That so?"

"Yes, I couldn't even eat the hole in one without getting dyspepsia."—Phil Adelphi Record.

A Good Beginning.

LOOKING BACKWARD

A Glance at the First Daily Paper Published in Reno.

In the curiosity cabinet, owned by J. F. Jones at the Riverside Hotel is the first copy of the Daily Nevada State Journal struck from the press. It bears date of March 31, 1874.

The paper is five columns, four pages and is neatly printed. The columns would be interesting reading to old timers. There is an extended write-up of an ore strike on Peavine, which later developed into the well known Peavine mine of Podunk.

Another article was devoted to enlarging upon the huge production of Comstock ore during the month just then past. Not a word was said about either porphyry or assessment.

A glance over the advertising columns discloses a lot of names that may be familiar to old-timers, but are Greek to new comers like the writer.

It is refreshing, however, to bump into the familiar cognomen of Tom Hymers who was as much in the livery business then as now.

In 1874 S. M. Jameson was in the stationery business. A H. Manning was dealing in hardware and Judges Webster and Haydon were practicing law.

These are the only familiar names in the advertising columns of the first daily paper printed in Reno. The business and professional men of Reno a quarter of a century ago are gone, some to foreign towns and states, but the great majority were carried up the hill and left to dream the dreams of eternity.

SPLENDID STRIKE

Rich Ore Discovered in the Nelson and Williams Claim.

There seems to be no question as to the richness of the strike made Tuesday by Nelson & Williams in their claim a mile northeast of Riter's iron mine.

The discoverers will not show the ore nor give out the assay, but it is stated by them that the rock will ship.

A prospector who was at the scene of the strike yesterday says that at a depth of four feet in a cut a seam of silver sulphide ore was encountered. Its four inches thick and is almost exactly like the dollar a pound streaks in the Reno Star and Bell claims.

By the way the Reno Star lead was less than four inches in thickness when first encountered.

Evidently Messrs. Nelson and Williams have a big prospect and no one congratulates them more sincerely than the Journal.

MANY TOUGH CUSTOMERS

The town is full of villainous-looking hobos, who are floating in on every train. They are infesting the hotels and saloons and may be found sleeping on the sidewalks and in the streets.

This breed of villain never works or washes. It is a foul smelling nuisance and a noisy abomination.

The mills of justice grind on these cases, but for some undecipherable reason the chain gang receives very few additions. The officers are tiring of making arrests only to have their prisoners released the following morning.

A determined effort should be made to bring an end to Reno's being made a dumping ground for this refuse of civilization.

PIGEONTOED JACK.

An amusing conversation sprang up yesterday morning during a trial at Justice Linn's Court when the Judge asked Constable Leeper where a missing witness was and also his name to which Leeper replied "Jack"—"Pigeontoeed Jack" and then turning to the judge he said "I will go and find him." When a bright jury-man said "Look for his tracks."

He evidently found his track for Charley soon returned with the man who told the Judge his name was "Jack"—"no"—quickly correcting himself "John."

AN IMPORTANT OFFICE.

From what the Journal can learn it seems to be the general wish of the citizens and taxpayers that the office of Fire Marshall be created in this city.

Such an official would investigate all fires and report on them, paying special attention to their origin. He would be able to protect property during fires. Not only would his office not conflict with that of the fire chief, but he would be able to materially aid and assist the latter.

WILL CONTINUE WORK.

Dr. Stubbs will continue University extension work on the Comstock for another term, provided a sufficient number signify their intention of joining the class.

WHO KNOWS THE INJUN?

A Very Odd Letter That Came Across the Deep Blue Sea.

The following letter has been received at the Journal office. It was addressed to "The Editor, Nevada Pioneer, Nevada, United States, America." The letter head is that of F. Newton, architect, and surveyor, 87 Cleveland Road, Crumpsall, Manchester, England:

My Dear Sir—You will perhaps be more astounded on reading the following message than I was on receipt of the same. To be as brief as possible I will place the facts in the following order.

On the above date (23 June) about 6.30 in the evening (English time) I was sitting in my office (above address) quietly developing "automatic writing," when to my astonishment I received the following message:

"The Indian Chief Obaswach wants you (myself) to write to the editor of the Nevada Pioneer to request him to ask his readers to send food, clothing and money to his tribe on the Nevada Frontier as they are in great want."

As a further proof of this (to me) wonderful manifestation, the chief informs me that he passed away (died) four years ago last February.

Dear Sir—If you will kindly publish this letter in your paper, and if the request is successful in obtaining the relief desired—as I feel sure on the facts becoming known it will be in abundance—I shall feel very much gratified along with yourself and your subscribers in having the privilege to accomplish a good act, not of charity but of necessity and to testify humbly to the wondrous power of the Creator.

I may further state that I have never heard of the tribe before and shall be very much pleased if you will kindly confirm this letter as to the facts and if not asking too much, to kindly forward me your paper with the results of the appeal.

With kind regards I am
Yours faithfully,
FRED NEWTON.

THE LAST CONCERT

The Carson Band May Visit Reno Before Going out of Business.

The Nevada State band, Carson's gilt edged aggregation of wind jammers, is seriously considering the question of disbanding. This is unwelcome news. The whole State is proud of this band. It has won laurels at home and abroad.

But, if a decision is reached by this musical organization to go out of business, Reno should invite them to come down some evening for a farewell concert.

Rats can be secured for them over the V. & T. road and no great expense would be entailed by their visit. Even if it does cost $50 or $100 the business men stand ready to put up that amount on half an hour's notice.

The boys will come down gladly. Nate Roff stands sponsor for that statement.

The Journal takes the liberty of appointing W. E. Cann, George Bryson, H. J. Thyes and Sam Moxing a committee to raise the necessary plunder.

A temporary platform can be built under the arc light at the intersection of Second and Virginia street.

There is absolute assurance that the band will come down some evening next week if requested. It's up to us to make the request.

DOINGS IN TONOPAH

What the Bonanza Says About That Lively Young Camp.

Lots with 15 feet frontage sell for $250.

The cry is lumber, give, oh, give us lumber.

There are now over 600 people in the camp.

Returns from 435 tons of ore from the Selby works was $92,112.

There are several good mines here that can be purchased. Don't all come for them at once.

A rich strike was made by two brothers in this county 40 miles north of Tonopah. It is gold rock. Mum is the word. The discoverers have gone out to make their locations.

No drunks or street brawls here the Fourth. Just think of this in this great wild woolly town of Tonopah. Our town is a moral one, no preachers have struck it as yet.

Dan O'Keefe has sold his interest in the G. & H. tunnel site for $550, and Billy Sinclair disposed of his holdings in the same property for a snug sum.

A NICKNAME THAT STUCK

"Bluestone Kelly, Reno."

The above was the manner of the address on a telegram which arrived in Reno yesterday from an eastern mining man.

The Western Union messenger boy had on hesitancy in delivering the message to J. W. Kelly at the Clarendon.

This nickname was given to Mr. Kelly by the Journal while he was negotiating the sale of the famous Bluestone mine in Mason Valley.

He has never been able to shake off the appellation. In fact, since the Bluestone has become such a good producer, he has come to prefer it to his baptismal name.

THE RELAY RACE.

In a couple of days more the result will be known. Meanwhile excitement regarding the approaching relay race is growing more intense.

The Reno riders were never in better condition and are confident that they will win, although they expect a hard race.

California is very wroth because Little Nevada captured the coast championship and a determined effort will be made to carry the trophy across the mountains.

The San Jose boys are expected to arrive on the 8.40 train tomorrow evening.

SCHOOL APPOINTMENTS.

Prof. Orvis Ring, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has made the second semi-annual appointment of school money for 1901. It is on a basis of $5.00 per census child.

There are 3075 census children in the State and the amount apportioned was $59,888.71. Washoe county, with its 1855 children, heads the list with $12,441.71. Elko is second with $6530.23. Storey is a close third, receiving $6,805.88. Churchill is last, getting only $607.15. Humboldt is fourth and Ormsby fifth.

IN A STRANGE LAND.

An aged woman giving the name of Mrs. Gregory, arrived in Reno yesterday. She said that her daughter would meet her here, but was too dazed and ill to give the latter's name. She was taken to the county hospital.

THE GOVERNOR'S VISIT.

Gov. Sadler, accompanied by his sons, Alfred and Clarence, came down from Carson last evening on his way to Elly, White Pine county, where the Governor goes to sell mining property. He says things are quiet at Carson since the carnival, but a number are going to help swell the crowd for Reno at the relay next Sunday.

Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." ABOUT MINE AND MINER

Notes Gathered From Exchanges About This Industry.

Last week's ore shipments from Esmeralda county aggregated 118 tons and those from White Pine 105 tons.

John C. Williams of Grass Valley, Cal., has been appointed organizer for the Western Federation of Miners. His district includes California, Nevada, and Arizona, and he will leave in a few days for Tonopah and Yerington, Nevada.

Byron E. Shear and S. A. Knapp returned Sunday from a visit to Tonopah. From measurements and assays carefully made they estimate that there are now 57,000 tons of ore in sight that will yield a net profit of $2,850,000. Is there another camp on earth that made a like showing at a depth of less than 100 feet? Inquires the Hawthorne Bulletin.

F. E. Fielding of the Con. Cal. & Va. assay office, who left for San Francisco a few days ago, had a surgical operation performed at one of the hospitals there last Tuesday to remove a portion of the bone or cartilage in his nose which had become enlarged to an extent that nearly closed the nostrils.

Fielding expects to be ready to return here in about two weeks.—Chronicle.
